Oil tariff increase likely

Ford to bare energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford tells a nationwide broadcast audience tonight about the next step in his energy program, with strong indications that it will include a second $1 tariff on each barrel of imported oil.

All major television and radio networks said they planned to broadcast Ford's statement live from his Oval Office at 8:30 p.m. EDT. A White House announcement said the President would disclose "his decisions on the energy program in the absence of any congressional action." The talk is expected to last about 10 minutes.

As key elements in his energy-conservation program, Ford proposed a $3-a-barrel tariff in three monthly steps and a gradual end to price controls on crude oil products.

The administration has said the program is designed to encourage fuel conservation and domestic oil production so the United States can sharply reduce its heavy dependence on foreign petroleum by the 1980s.

Officials estimate that each $1-per-barrel tax boost adds 1 to 1½ cents to the retail price of gasoline.

Ford imposed the first $1 of the tariff Feb. 1 but set aside plans to add additional dollars on March 1 and April 1 after Congress began working on its own energy tax package.

The congressional effort has been stalled, however, and Ford took note of that when he told five foreign correspondents last Friday that he was weighing whether to impose the second dollar tariff.

"The Congress has failed very badly," he asserted. "They have done literally nothing affirmatively to solve our energy problem. Perhaps the imposition of the extra dollar will stimulate the Congress to meet the problem."

The House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates all tax legislation, has approved an energy tax package, but House leaders decided to delay floor action on it until after Congress returns from its Memorial Day recess a week from today.

Under the Ways and Means bill, energy conservation would be sought primarily through a boost in the federal gasoline tax. That levy, now 4 cents a gallon, would rise by three cents in the next year and as much as 23 cents by the end of the 1970s.

KSU jury hears opening arguments

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Attorneys presented opening arguments today to six men and six women who will decide whether Gov. James Rhodes and 43 former state officials and Ohio National Guardsmen should pay $46 million in damages to victims of the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

Plaintiffs and defense sketched what they would seek to prove during the trial that is expected to last five to six weeks.

The panel includes three housewives, four factory workers, an engineer, a shipping clerk, a bank teller, an accountant and a retired liquor salesman.

Mrs. Edith Jakaitis, a Euclid housewife, is a former factory worker. Her only previous legal experience, she told the court, was with a contested will that never went to trial. She also said she had no preconceived ideas about the shootings.

Mrs. Cecelia Klancar of Euclid, wife of a retired baker, said she has three children; two boys and a girl ranging in age from 19 to 29. Two of the children have been college students.

Mrs. Martha Dotterer of rural Rittman, wife of a farmer, Henry, remained on the panel despite replying, "Possibly not," when U.S. District Court Judge Don Young asked whether she could set aside her opinions about the case. She also survived plaintiffs' request she be excused because of a religious belief that she could not sue for damages if injured.

Her dark hair pulled tightly back into a bun behind her head, Mrs. Dotterer unsmilingly also told the court her nephew would graduate from Kent State this summer and that she had visited the campus.

Plaintiffs and defendants also agreed to seat four factory workers.

A machinist, Bobbie Collins of Warrensville Heights, said he never has read beyond the headlines about the Kent State case. Another machinist, Steven Pohorence of Brook Park, said he never reached any conclusions, either, about the events of May 4, 1970. Pohorence told the court he enlisted in the Army and learned to use the M-1 rifle, one of the weapons involved in the case.

Richard Williams is a Cleveland armature winder, who said he has a brother and cousin who served in the National Guard before 1970. But he added he never learned their opinions about the shootings.

Mrs. Roberta Heckman of Avon is a service repair worker and wife of a sheetmetal worker. She said a son, one of four children, was a Naval Reservist and had friends in the National Guard.

An assistant engineer for Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. sits as juror No. 8. He is Stanley Davis Jr.

A second Wooster resident also sits on the jury. He is Roland Miller, a shipping clerk at Rubbermaid Corp. The father of two young girls said he served in the Army in Turkey from 1964 to 1967 and that a brother-in-law had been a member of the National Guard.

A divorced mother of a 9-year-old girl is juror No. 6. Mrs. Patricia Meyer of Parma Heights listed her occupation as head teller at a branch of the Ohio Savings Bank.

Also seated was a highly articulate retired liquor-sales supervisor from Shaker Heights, Albert Hunt Sr.

Rounding out the 12 is Mrs. Ellen Gaskalla of Lorain, staff accountant for a business there. She said she and her husband, Larry, have no children.

The jury was empaneled Thursday, and Young adjourned the session in the middle of the afternooon, saying there was not enough time to complete opening statements and that he did not want jurors to leave with only half the picture of what the two sides hoped to prove.

Young instructed the jurors not to discuss the case with anyone, including their families, and said to blame him if anyone objected. "I'll carry the burden on my shoulders if you'll just remember to put it there," Young said.

The judge has prohibited anyone connected with the trial from discussing it with newsmen. When asked what the gag rule covered, he told newsmen, "The gag rule extends to me."

In the first phase, jurors will be asked to determine whether Rhodes and the former state officials and guardsmen should be held financially responsible in the shootings. If nine jurors vote yes, a hearing will be held to determine amounts.

The suit has been brought by nine students wounded and parents of four students killed when guardsmen opened fire on campus demonstrators protesting U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

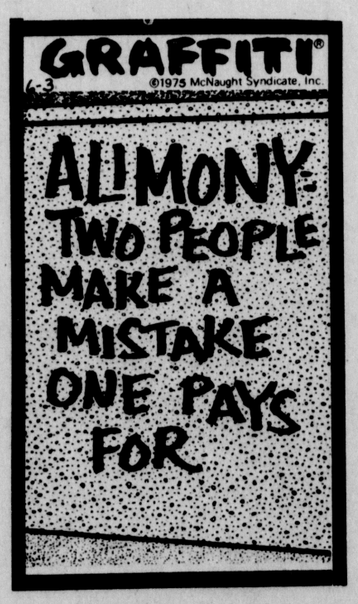

DYNAMITE DUO — Washington C. H. Lions Club members Fred Enslen and R. B. (Bud) Tharp don their equipment in preparation for the benefit softball game at 5:30 p.m. tonight with members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club. The game, which will be played at Roszmann Field off U.S. 35-N, is expected to attract a large crowd of spectators. Both teams have been freely exchanging barbs and challenges recently while going through practice drills. The coaches from both teams have proclaimed victory, but no matter the winner, the game should provide excellent entertainment, with some surprises for the spectators.

Firefly hunt draws near

BELLE CENTER, Ohio (AP)—It's nearly firefly hunting time in this central Ohio village of 950 and the Belle Center lightning brigade is about ready to begin field maneuvers.

Members of the local Girl Scout troop will charge down streets, through alleys and across backyards trying to catch fireflies.

In the interests of science — and financing a trip to Switzerland—the girls will gather fireflies for sale at about a penny apiece to the Sigma Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

The Sigma company refines the bugs' lightning chemicals into substances used to detect cancer and urinary infections and to determine levels of bacterial pollution of water.

Seven of the girls will use the money for a three-week trip to Europe, with a planned stopover at the international Girl Scout headquarters.

Evel Knievel hurt in crash; says he won't jump again

LONDON (AP) — Evel Knievel said he would never jump again after suffering painful injuries in a motorcycle leap over 13 single-deck London buses that he thought failed to set a distance record.

But promoters of the stunt and most of the newsmen who watched the 35-year-old American daredevil hit the dust at 100 miles an hour Monday night accepted the claim of his aides that he had set a new flying motorcycle mark of 140 feet.

"In two or three days, Evel may well reconsider the decision not to ride again," said his publicity man. "He is in considerable pain and the last thing in the world he wants to be thinking about at this stage is riding a bike."

A few persons said they thought Knievel's 750cc Harley Davidson touched the roof of the 13th bus and that caused him to fall before 70,000 screaming spectators in London's Wembley Stadium. But most of the experts agreed he cleared the buses and crashed on landing.

The publicity man, Brian Cartnell, said the motorcycle split a plywood plank when it came down, throwing Evel and the bike into the air. The motorcycle landed on top of him.

He limped to a microphone, his costume in tatters and his face blackened, and told the crowd:

"Ladies and gentlemen of this wonderful country, I have got to tell you that you are the last people to see me jump. I shall never jump again and that is the truth. I am through."

Then he was rushed to the London Hospital. Cartnell said he had a crushed vertebra in the middle of his back, a fracture of the right hand, other spinal damage and severe bruises.

The 140-foot jump bettered Knievel's previous mark of 104 feet, set in Toronto, and was the second longest he had ever attempted. The longest was his unsuccessful attempt to rocket over the Snake River Canyon in Idaho last September. Before that, he had tried to hurtle himself over cars, trucks and other objects more than 300 times. He failed in 11 attempts and broke 50 bones.

The accident forced Knievel to cancel the rest of a British tour.

He addressed the gathering briefly and stressed the important role played by today's youth. He noted that they will soon shoulder the responsibility for maintaining America's liberties—or will bear the disgrace of allowing those liberties to slip away.

"These responsibilities cannot be avoided," Perrill said. Today's leaders will relinquish their role as leaders, and the youth will bear full responsibility for whatever they choose to make of the future, he added.

Guest speaker Major Grover Hastings continued in a similar vein as he urged all citizens to be more active in the governmental process. He cautioned

Malpractice bill eyed by solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The House insurance committee will begin scrutiny today of a rewritten medical malpractice bill aimed at combatting the soaring rates and diminishing availability of protection for doctors.

The revamped measure was originally proposed by Gov. James A. Rhodes' insurance department with heavy input from the Ohio Medical Association. However, the Democratic-controlled House insurance subcommittee inserted 24 amendments, many of them major changes, before approving the plan last week.

Rep. William J. Hinig, D-96 New Philadelphia, the nominal sponsor of the bill, has set a tight timetable for action in his Insurance Utilities and Financial Institutions Committee. Hinig will hear testimony from opponents and proponents next Tuesday and Wednesday and attempt to vote the bill out of committee on Thursday, June 5.

"It's a critical issue," Hinig said. "I would hope we could get swift action on the House floor (after the committee recommendation)."

The bill received for study by the full committee today would establish a state-operated joint underwriting pool of insurers to guarantee protection to all licensed doctors, including those viewed as "high risk." Blue Cross, Blue Shield and other prepaid plans would be part of the pool as well as all private medical liability insurance companies.

A provision to limit lawyers fees in connection with malpractice settlements has brought strong opposition from the Ohio Bar Association which has a bill of its own awaiting committee consideration in the state Senate.

The fee schedule would limit lawyers to:

—50 pre cent of the first $1,000 recovered; 40 per cent of the next $2,000; 33 1-3 per cent of the next $47,000; 20 per cent of the next $50,000, and 10 per cent of any amount over $100,000.

Subcommittee members said the Ohio Supreme Court could adopt its own graduated maximum fee schedule if it finds the bill's limits to be "invalid."

The bar association, apparently poised for a major battle, attempted to delete the fee limits in subcommittee last week, and failing that, gained Senate introduction of a bill which leaves out the restriction.

Other major points in the House bill:

—a $200,000 ceiling on settlements for general damages, mainly pain and suffering, when no death is involved.

—Settlement through binding arbitration when both patient and doctor agree, but with a 60-day escape hatch for claimants allowing them to cancel or "opt out" of the arbitration agreement. Nonbinding arbitration would be compulsory before filing of a lawsuit in court.

—Physicians and osteopaths would be required to undergo 150 hours of "continuing medical education" every three years.

—All malpractice suits would be filed in the Court of Claims in Columbus, but trials would generally be physically conducted in common pleas court chambers in the county of the claimant.

—Doctors, unable to acquire protection through a private insurer, could get policies from the joint underwriting pool in amounts as high as $500,000 per occurrence with a maximum of $1 million on all claims during a policy years. Both limits would be $1 million for hospital policies.

—To assure the solvency of the joint pool, a stabilization reserve fund would be set up with backing from 20 per cent of the premiums of all malpractice insurers and a 20 per cent premium surcharge on all policies secured through the pool.

—Written consent to a medical procedure would be presumed to be valid evidence in court.

—Claimants could no longer write the specific dollar amount sought into a lawsuit.

—The doctor-patient privilege would be waived during a trial, permitting doctors to testify about relevant case history.

Democrat hopefuls prepare campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a trio of inconspicuous Capitol Hill buildings, the 1976 Democratic presidential campaigns of Morris K. Udall, Lloyd M. Bentsen and Henry M. Jackson are taking shape.

The settings reflect their candidacies. Udall's is a converted office building bustling with youthful workers, Bentsen's the well-appointed parkside townhouse with low-key activity, Jackson's a townhouse whose plushness and activity rate somewhere between the other two.

The maps on the wall display different interests. Udall's outlines organizational responsibilities, Bentsen's displays media markets, Jackson's shows the delegate totals and spending limits in each state.

Nearly a year before most of the nation has focused on the 1976 presidential battle, small groups of professional and amateur politicians are doing the fundraising and organizational chores they hope will spell success next spring.

The three Capitol Hill offices aren't the only scenes of activity.

In downtown Washington, the campaign of former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford is about to move into new quarters that once housed the Democratic National Committee.

In suburban McLean, Va., the Fred R. Harris campaign is operating out of the former Oklahoma senator's home.

And in Montgomery, Ala., and Atlanta, efforts to put George C. Wallace and Jimmy Carter into the White House are well under way.

For now, nine months before the first primary will begin to sort out those who have survived that far, key aides look ahead with optimism.

"If we've got it figured right, we're coming along all right," said Robert G. Keefe, the softspoken, rotund director of the Jackson campaign who probably knows more key Democrats than anyone else involved in the 1976 race.

Jackson is busy raising money, some $2 million so far; attacking President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, but not his Democratic rivals; and moving relatively slowly to start organizing.

Keefe conceded the reason is the 1974 campaign law, which sets tight limits on the amounts candidates can spend on a state-by-state basis.

A few blocks away at Udall's headquarters, the emphasis is on organization in the field, especially the key early primary states of New Hampshire and Wisconsin that created the momentum for George McGovern's successful 1972 drive.

But Udall aides freely concede they are being hampered by difficulty in raising money, especially from liberal money men who aren't sure that Udall is the candidate for them.

Bentsen's campaign director, Ben Palumbo, has no such problems. Bentsen has raised some $1.4 million, third behind Wallace and Jackson.

Although he isn't ready to say Bentsen will bypass the first batch of primaries, Palumbo puts great emphasis on the industrial East and Middle West, starting with the April 6 New York primary.

"It's all a question of momentum," he added, noting that Pennsylvania follows New York, with Texas a few days later.

Major economic policy shift set

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today proposed the formation of a series of producer-consumer commissions on raw materials and other Third World concerns as a means of reopening the preparatory world energy conference.

U.S. officials acknowledged that the proposal outlined by Kissinger to the 18-nation International Energy Association represented a shift in American policy and could ultimately lead to controls against "excessive price volatility."

But they denied that the Ford administration has decided to participate in price-fixing schemes or would support the "indexing" proposal by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi to tie the price of crude oil to major industrial products bought by the oil countries.

Kissinger told newsmen he believes the preparatory energy meeting can be resumed within a month. However, French officials said it might be several months before another meeting could be set up. The first preparatory meeting collapsed in March when the United States and other industrial nations rejected demands by Algeria and other underdeveloped nations that the future oil conference be broadened to include all raw materials.

Kissinger told the members of the International Energy Agency — IEA — that they "have no reason to recoil from a discussion of all the issues of concern to developing countries."

He said the proposed commissions would explore such questions as finance, investment, trade and production and would have no deadline for completing their work. Principal exporters and importers of food and other raw materials would participate in the commodities panel.

One observer suggested that Kissinger was trying to "finesse" the energy controversy by offering to consider raw materials other than oil over the long, leisurely run while pressing for a vigorous united front against oil price increases.

Somewhat cooler temperatures and minimal chances of rain are expected to dominate Ohio's weather picture for the next few days.

Temperatures should be closer to normal for this time of year, with highs under partly cloudy skies at 65 to 70 close to the Lake Erie shore, and into the 70s farther south.

Tonight clear skies and light winds should drop temperatures to the upper 40s or 50s, but sunshine Wednesday is forecast to push the mercury back up into the 60s and 70s.

A cold front moved southeastward across Ohio Monday night, dispersing tropical air that had persisted over the state for nearly a week. Scattered showers and thunderstorms accompanied the front Monday and early Monday night. Youngstown recorded one of the higher rainfall amounts with around a quarter of an inch.

Following the cold front is a high pressure system over Iowa and Kansas which is moving eastward to Ohio bringing fair weather.

Senator's son drowns

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Robert S. Talmadge, 29, son of Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, drowned while swimming Monday. Sen. Talmadge, a Georgia Democrat who had returned to his home state for the Memorial Day holiday, rushed to Hall County Hospital when notified that the body had been brought there. Robert Talmadge, who operated a real estate agency in Atlanta, was the younger of the senator's two sons.

Pleas set in investigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith said that "10 or more" former state employes would plead guilty today to misdemeanor theft charges and make restitution on their salaries.

The pleas will mark the first official results of a three-month old county grand jury investigation into charges of payroll irregularities following the November election last year.

"Further developments are expected," Smith said, disclosing he would make a formal announcement Wednesday. The prosecutor did not rule out the possibility of indictments.

The former state workers set to plea today were described during plea bargaining negotiations with Smith's office as "bottom level soldiers," suspected of failing to appear for state jobs they received after the election.

The grand jury investigation was launched in late March as the result of allegations that Democratic campaign workers were handed no-show state employment last November and December.

Train derails

OLD FORT, Ohio (AP) — Two Indiana men were injured early Tuesday when a Norfolk and Western train derailed in northern Seneca County near here.

The Seneca County Sheriff's Department said the derailment blocked Ohio 53 for more than four hours.

The train's engineer told authorities that a hitch broke as he braked when he saw a piece of metal on the track. Two of the train's 163 cars were damaged.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in a mixed showing today as profit taking stalled the sharp rally that had begun on Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up at the outset, was off 3.68 at 828.22 by noon. Gainers maintained a modest lead over losers in fairly quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Friday's buying was traced in large part to a prime rate reduction by New York City's First National City Bank from 7¼ to 7 per cent — the lowest level in two years. But the market seemed to cool off this morning when the First National Bank of Chicago announced it would not immediately match the cut.

Pacific Gas & Electric was the most active issue on the Big Board, unchanged at 19¾.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .32 to 88.05.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .12 to 47.93.

McCulloch Oil, the Amex volume leader, showed a ¼ gain at 4⅛.

that unless Americans become more vigilant in their scrutiny of public officials, they are likely to lose the freedoms they now enjoy.

He added that if the public fails to keep abreast of what legislators are doing, the democratic system of government itself fails.

Although the crowd which gathered was somewhat smaller than the average over the past several years, the service was well received, Perrill said. He said those who attended seemed very appreciative of the major's remarks.

The Miami Trace High School band played two selections in addition to opening the program with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner and closing the service with Taps.

Burnett Ducey Post No. 4964 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsored the service and provided the firing squad.

The women's auxiliary of the VFW post placed the memorial wreath.

Jeffersonville's memorial parade began at 10 a.m. at the elementary school. The procession moved to the old Jeffersonville cemetery and then to Fairview Cemetery for services.

Giving the Memorial Day address was the Rev. Cloyce D. Copley of Washington C.H., national chaplain of the VFW. The services were directed by the William Horney Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Services in Bloomingburg were held at Bloomingburg Cemetery. Sponsored by the Myron Judy Post of the Civil War, the memorial service featured an address by the Rev. Harold Messmer and a tribute by Henry Litz, Commander of American Legion Post 25 of Washington C.H.

Mrs. Speakman took part in the Bloomingburg activities, and Rex Bloomer directed the presentation of the wreath.

The salute was given by a firing squad from Company C of the Washington C.H. National Guard unit, the Homer Lawson American Legion Post carried the colors and the Miami Trace band played Taps.

Speechmaking business

A new law which took effect last January 1 limits members of Congress to $15,000 a year in speaking and writing fees and puts a $1,000 ceiling on any honorarium. The figures on such earnings by lawmakers last year show that there is good reason for such limitations.

Reports required of senators and representatives disclose that many of them were handsomely rewarded for their extracurricular speechmaking. In some cases they received more than their congressional salaries.

Talks by lawmakers to audiences in various parts of the country are not entirely a bad thing. A good argument can be made for encouraging such appearances as part of the process of educating the public as to issues of the day.

When substantial rewards are involved, however, questions arise. This is particularly so when fat honorariums are paid by groups representing interests in which the speaker has special influence. When a member of a banking committee, for example, is paid a couple of thousand dollars to address an audience of bankers, there is the possibility of a conflict of interest.

The practice of frequent speechmaking in places distant from Washington prompts other misgivings. One may ask whether a senator or representative who makes large sums for public appearances may not be neglecting the interests of those who elected him to office. The answer to that is pretty clearly yes if important votes on legislation are missed for this reason, as has often happened.

It is gratifying, then, that the new law restricts both the number of well-paid speeches a lawmaker may make, and the sum he can receive for any given appearance. This is a more healthful situation than we have had in the past.

A WORD EDGEWISE. . .By John P. Roche

The intoxication of success

Power may, as Lord Acton observed, "tend to corrupt," but I sometimes suspect that even more politically risky is the intoxication of success. This thought was triggered by 15 or 20 requests that have come in over the past six weeks that I go on television to explore, "What Went Wrong in Vietnam?" For physical reasons (I suffer from photophobia: I can't stand the glare of lights for 15 minutes without getting a splitting headache) I declined. But nonetheless, I have reluctantly attempted to formulate a simple answer.

As a historian, the first thing necessary was to endeavor to escape from the world of 1975 and return to the early 1960s. Anybody today can tell you Vietnam was a disaster, but that comes from reading the last chapter of the mystery first. If one spent a lot of time in Washington in, say, 1963-4, there allegedly was a powerful light at the end of the Vietnamese tunnel (assuming anyone in power thought there was a tunnel). After the initial failure at the Bay of Pigs, President Kennedy had gone on to force Moscow to drop its ultimatum over Berlin and to back down in the October, 1962 missile crisis. Everything seemed to be coming up roses. Even the endless Laotian mess appeared to have been cleaned up at Geneva.

Vietnam was then a very small cloud on the horizon and the "best and the brightest" were working out the solution to that one: the theology of the year was "counter-insurgency." In short, there was the intoxication of success—which should not be confused with former Senator Fulbright's "arrogance of power," because it was wholly non-malignant. If it contributed to our involvement in Southeast Asia, it also paved the way for the Test Ban Treaty. Essentially it was benignly innocent. It also made me very nervous — I am the kind of character who, shooting craps during the war and hitting a run of luck, always pulled out his original investment after the third pass, anticipating "snake eyes" on the next throw.

In other words, I am a bit of a superstitious peasant, and nothing upset me more in the fall of 1963 than the persistent rumor around Washington that we should, as it were, change models in Saigon — replace President Ngo Dinh Diem with someone who could fight an efficient war against the Communists. To show how far this notion travelled, a resolution to that effect was introduced at the National Board meeting of Americans for Democratic Action on Oct. 15, 1963. It was defeated, after long debate, and replaced by a resolution calling for the withdrawal of aid from the Diem government unless it stopped its political and religious persecution. (Today this would be known as "destabilizing" the Diem regime.)

Curiously in the light of events since, one of the main charges against Diem (which has received considerable corroboration) was that he was privately making a deal with Ho Chi Minh which would take South Vietnam out of the "Free World." He was not our puppet. Also curious, in the same sense, was that the most vociferous advocate of dumping Diem was the New York Times' David Halberstam, who considered the President a liability in the struggle to maintain our vital interest in Southeast Asia! My view was that we should let Diem handle his own problems in his own way — without us. I considered Vietnam to be about as vital to our strategic interests as Bhutan, and a terrible place to fight a war. You can be a cold warrior without being a nut.

Then the event occurred which led to my reputation for "hawkishness": the C.I.A. on Oct. 31, 1963 engineered the coup which led to Diem's murder. In fairness he was not supposed to be killed — in his last message to Diem, Ambassador Lodge offered him asylum in the embassy, but the ascetic old Mandarin scornfully rejected it. The American instigation of the Diem coup, which was closely documented by Bob Shaplen in the "New Yorker" in early 1974, created (at least for me) an entirely new situation. We eliminated the one towering non-Communist Vietnamese nationalist, and by so doing, in my somber judgment, nailed the American flag to the mast in Saigon.

At that point the South Vietnamese became our political wards and Vietnam became a "test" of our willingness to fulfill this commitment, of our national honor. Intoxiated by success, President Kennedy and his top advisors failed to see the fork in the road.

Regents chief seeks enrollees

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The new chairman of the Ohio Board of Regents, controversial coordinator of the state's institutions of higher education, wants nearly to double the number of Buckeye youth who go to college.

"Only one-third of high school graduates in Ohio attend higher educational institutions," said Marvin Warner of Cincinnati, elected in April to the chairmanship.

"That means two-thirds are missing the opportunity to acquire the knowledge and skills higher education offers.

"That's a real brain-drain and I want to do something about it. I want every family in this state to know about the great system we have."

While serving as chairman through September, Warner hopes to focus on increasing public knowledge of and access to Ohio's higher education, especially in its general and technical colleges.

"It is not necessary to have a liberal arts degree for success," he said. "We have a great number of technical schools.

"There still should be pride in being able to use your hands as well as your brain, and in being able to use them together. I want to emphasize the dignity and respectability of a technical education."

Warner stressed the importance of private colleges in Ohio's higher education system. "One of the great heritages of Ohio rests with the many fine private colleges in this state," he said. "But, with the inflationary costs we'll be losing some of these schools unless there is help for them."

One way the state can help, Warner said, is to contract for educational services from the private schools. He cited the arrangement developed this year between Wilmington College and Ohio's new Southern State General and Technical College.

But, for all his eagerness, Warner said he wanted the regents to maintain a low profile.

"We have no desire to usurp the authority of the board of trustees of any university," the Cincinnati businessman said. "We simply want to perform those services that only a comprehensive unit can offer."

Gov. James A. Rhodes has said he thought the board of regents should be abolished. He said he thought the board had gone far beyond its mission.

The board was established to coordinate the advance planning of state higher education institutions.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

College girl 'gives in' once too often

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old college junior. I made a bad mistake in my freshman year. I wanted to be popular so I gave in to several guys on the first date, hoping one would like me enough to stay with me. None did, and all I got was a lousy reputation.

About five months ago, a dude who was really neat started to notice me. I made up my mind that I would play hard to get with him because being easy got me nowhere. The first time he asked me out I fought it and fought it but gave in because I wanted to see him again. He never called me after that. I wanted to see him so much, I called him, but he always made excuses so he wouldn't have to see me.

He is the only guy I really felt anything for, Abby. How can I get him to realize that if I have him, I wouldn't look at another dude?

I think about him night and day. I can't sleep or study. I'm going crazy. Please tell me how to get another chance with him.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Sorry, but there's no way to get a guy to see you, date you or even give you a second glance if he's not interested. You blew it when you gave in to him. Bed hopping is not the way to get a man. Counseling is available on your campus, so please take advantage of it. You need more help than I can give you in a letter.

DEAR ABBY: My brother is dating a widow. Her daughter is going to be married soon, and my brother has been asked to give the bride away.

The bride-to-be has been living with her fiance for two years, so there is nothing to "give away," and everyone knows it. Under the circumstances, my brother is concerned over the propriety of accepting this dubious honor.

I'd appreciate an answer in your column. We all read it, and this would inform us without complications. Thank you.

SIS

DEAR SIS: The custom of "giving away" the bride need not be taken literally. Your brother would be standing in for the bride's father. He should be complimented, not critical. (P.S. Should he refuse, he would be giving HIMSELF away.)

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it true that animals (especially dogs and cats) have a sixth sense when it comes to telling who likes them and who doesn't?

I mean, it's possible for people to deceive other people about things like that, but you can never fool an animal, right?

ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Wrong! I know a man who strongly dislikes both dogs and cats, but they are drawn to him as moths are to a flame. I know that his show of affection for animals is only an act, but he fools all the pets all of the time!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOOKING FOR A BETTER LIFE": Faint heart never won fair maiden or any kind of man. Invite that attractive dentist to something for which you just happen to have a pair of tickets (buy them, of course), then let him take it from there.

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, May 27, the 147th day of 1975. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the British Navy sank the German battleship, Bismarck, off France, with a loss of 2,300 lives. The Bismarck had been pursued more than 1,700 miles after sinking the British warship, Hood, three days earlier.

On this date —

In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, invaded Sicily and captured the city of Palermo.

In 1905, a Japanese naval force wiped out a Russian fleet of 32 ships.

In 1936, the British luxury liner, Queen Mary, began its maiden trans atlantic voyage.

In 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge across San Francisco Bay was opened.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

One of the few sensible actions in the recent history of American foreign policy has been the diplomatic and economic isolation of Communist Cuba.

However, pressure is being exerted once again to undo even that good deed, by listing the 11-year-old trade embargo and sanctions against the island.

FIRST, Senator George McGovern rushed down to Cuba, embraced Fidel Castro, and returned with the good news that all was well there.

The Organization of American States then convened in Washington to air the subject of Cuba once again. As a present for our Latin guests, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger stated that "a general understanding" had been reached on how to end the sanctions against Cuba.

Although the embargo is now imposed by all but nine of the 23 O.A.S. states, only the organization's requirement of a two-thirds vote on the matter prevented withdrawing all sanctions against Cuba last year. Efforts are now underway to change the rules and allow the question to be decided by a simple majority vote.

These developments have given new hope to Senator Edward Kennedy, Castro's leading Congressional apologist. Kennedy has introduced legislation soon to be considered by the Senate, to repeal the 1962 joint resolution imposing American sanctions against Cuba.

It would repeal a section of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, which prohibits aid to Cuba and any country which furnishes aid to Cuba unless the President determines such aid to be in the national interest.

The move to welcome Castro and his repressive regime back into the hemispheric family of nations is a one-sided affair. Castro has not changed, and he is offering nothing of any consequence in return for the olive branch being extended him by some in Congress.

Cuba today is an affront to basic human rights and individual freedom. Castro has imprisoned thousands of Cubans, and executed thousands more. He has confiscated American property and the property of those Cubans who fled the country. He and the civil libertarians in this country make strange bedfellows indeed.

More threatening than Castro himself is the company he keeps. The Soviet Union enjoys a made-to-order base of operations only 90 miles from our shores. While we have contained Cuba through the embargo, we have to a certain degree contained Soviet influence in this hemisphere as well.

Both Cuba and the Russians would like to see an end to the isolation. Castro's track record indicates that once out from under the embargo, he would export subversion and aid to terrorists already at work in Argentina and elsewhere.

At the same time, he would be eligible for American foreign aid, and given our State Department's determination to "buy" friends abroad and the generosity of Congress, Cuba would soon be getting American tax dollars.

For the Soviets, Castro's friendship is too expensive. They would like to share the costs. It costs them from $1.5 million to $2 million per day in foreign economic aid to Cuba. In addition, they have given the Cuban Armed Forces nearly $3 billion in military equipment.

AMENDMENTS to be offered to Kennedy's bill would keep the embargo in force until the President certifies to Congress that Cuba has agreed to settle claims for confiscated American property; closed its ports to Soviet naval vessels and cleared the island of Soviet agents; and agreed not to intervene in the domestic affairs of other nations in this hemisphere.

The President would also certify that the United States naval base at Guantanamo would not be disbanded without congressional approval.

Castro is not likely to agree to these demands, and why should he, if he can get what he wants for nothing?

While Castro and Communism rule Cuba, our embargo against that island nation should stand. As long as Castro remains a Soviet friend, let him remain strictly a Soviet headache.

Plans for Fayette County Fair being made by departments

July 20 will be the opening day of the 1975 Fayette County Fair. Exhibits may be entered on July 11 and 12, and all entries must be at the Fairground from 1 to 5 p.m. July 19. J. W. Sears is Director of the Fair this year.

The aim is to make the Fayette County Fair appealing to all fairgoers, to make it one of the best yet, also one of the best in the state. This takes the support and cooperation of many people.

The Flower Show will be under the direction of Mrs. Robert Wilson, and will be held in the Arts and Crafts Building.

The Baked Goods Department, will be under the direction of Mrs. Glen McCoy. Some premiums have been hiked in price, because of the high cost of sugar, but it is hoped that many will enter this category.

Mrs. Harold Callender is in charge of the Household Furnishings. This is always an interesting field, to see what housewives do with their "spare" time to make the home more attractive, and the clothing they sew for their families. Last year, the items were displayed so they could be viewed easier.

Last year's Ceramics show was the largest yet, but it is likely that this year's entries will be even more. Mrs. J. W. Sears is in charge of this department.

Mr. Charles Pensyl, in charge of the Photography Department, says this department will be larger than last year, and everyone likes to see good and unusual photographs and scenery.

Mrs. William Miller, in charge of pictures and art work, says that the public enjoys viewing the art work, and see the talent in Fayette County. All age groups have interesting and worthwhile hobbies, and it is hoped that there will be room for these to be entered and judged in the various age groups.

A special show this year in the Arts and Crafts Building will be a display of 50 handmade dolls in authenic room settings which tells the story of this country's heritage throughout the years. Mrs. Donald Jones of Columbus will be in charge of the display.

Demonstrations are always interesting and attract many. Demonstrations are planned this year, but they will be announced later.

J. W. Sears, Director for 1975-76, announced that if anyone has any questions regarding entries, they may contact the superintendent of departments. exhibits are open to anyone living in the county, who pays for an exhibitors ticket and has entries ready by July 19.

BI-CENTENNIAL JEWELRY — Many members of the Business and Professional Women's Club have been seen wearing the medallion necklace (left), or carrying a medallion keychain like that on the right, commemorating the Bi-Centennial Year. They are available in silver or gold. from any local BPW member.

Mrs. Louis Morrison welcomed 17 members of the Martha Washington Committee on Indian Affairs of the Daughters of the American Revolution to her home Monday for the May meeting. She was assisted by Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, chairman, Mrs. Ralph Whaley and Mrs. Robert Lisk, in the hospitalities, which were served by candlelight.

Mrs. Larry Loyd, a native of Colombia, S. America, who was introduced by Mrs. Ronald Cornwell, showed slides of the national flower of Colombia, the Mayflower, and told of the comparison of roads and schools in Colombia and the United States. Mrs. Loyd, a Spanish and Latin teacher at Miami Trace High School, also said that Bolivar is their liberator, and his statue stands in each city of Colombia. July 20 is their Independence Day, and a statue of George Washington also stands in the capital of Bogota. She stated that the Colombian Constitution is very much like the Constitution of the United States of America. Coffee, the main export, and oil, are the sources of their land's wealth. All enjoyed the charm and excellent program presented by Mrs. Loyd.

Mrs. Cornwell led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and presided during the business meeting. Mrs. Mildred Rogers, chairman of the tour committee for June, told of Buston Inn and historic and interesting places to visit in the Granville area.

Officers for the year were announced: Mrs. Byron Hinton, chairman; Mrs. Robert Harris, vice chairman; Mrs. Cornwell, secretary; and Miss Helen Slavens, treasurer.

On this Memorial Day, members reminisced of their restoration of the "Old Pioneer Cemetery" in 1950.

Members are to meet at the home of Mrs. Cornwell at 9:45 a.m. June 12, for the tour to Granville.

Daytonians face primary issues

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Dayton will consider giving the mayor and city commission their first pay raise since 1913, the year the city charter was first approved, when the Daytonians vote in the June 3 primary election.

Nine candidates will also seek nomination for two city commission seats in the nonpartisan race next November. The four top vote-getters will be on the November ballot. Two other seats for four year terms are not up this year.

The pay raise issue is also tied to a proposal that all future replacement members of the Dayton City Commission be elected rather than appointed, as in the past. Both issues are contained in that single charter amendment.

The pay issue would raise the salary of the mayor to $9,000 annually from $1,800. City commissioners now make $1,200 and would make $6,000 if the issue is approved.

The replacement issue is centered around the appointment last year of Michael Schierloh, 23, by the board of commissioners to replace a commissioner who resigned.

Democrats hold a 4-1 majority on the Dayton City Commission although elections are nonpartisan. All candidates run as independents.

Schierloh, who resigned his job as city ombudsman when appointed, is currently unemployed.

Other candidates for city commission are:

Richard Clay Dixon, 33, director of the Dayton City School adult education program. Dixon said the key campaign issue is unemployment.

Edward L. Fanning, 41, who was defeated in his 1973 bid to be mayor, is campaigning on his philosophy of "conservative populism" and opposes the city manager form of government as not representative of the people.

Martin M. Harmuth, 55, active in the city wide Model Cities program, is making his first political bid. The insurance representative wants commissioners elected from seven zones instead of a direct vote of all the electorate.

Ver Dree Wilson Harris, 41, is a part time consultant to the National High Blood Pressure Program headquartered in Bethesda, Md., and has been active on housing issues.

Archie Lewis, 41, deputy assistant director of the Ohio Office of Minority Enterprise, is backed by the Republican Party.

Steve Meyer, 25, an accountant, is campaigning against closed door meetings of city commissioners and other boards.

Patricia Roach, 35, a dental hygienist, is chairperson of the city housing appeals board and heads a local church activist group.

Donald L. Wellmeier, 41, hardware firm operator, is an active Democrat and has been involved in human relations and consumer affairs issues.

A light voter turnout is expected.

Coin phone receivers altered

To combat a recently diagnosed compatibility problem between telephone-pickup type hearing aids and some Ohio Bell Telephone Co. coin telephones, the company has begun modifying receivers on all newly-installed or replaced pay phones.

The new receivers generate the harmless magnetic leakage which hearing aids with telephone pickups need to work, according to Bruce Galloway, Ohio Bell Telephone Co. commercial manager in Washington C. H.

The modified pay telephones can be easily identified, Galloway said, by a blue coil placed around the armored cord where it is fastened to the receiver.

Ohio Bell, which has proposed its first coin telephone increase in 23 years, says the hearing aid compatibility problem arose when some pay telephones were equipped with a more vandal-resistant receiver. The sturdier receivers, however, did not generate enough magnetic leakage for telephone pickup hearing aids. The modified receivers permit the sound leakage needed by telephone-pickup hearing aids.

A portable adapter for hearing aids with telephone pickups now is available from Ohio Bell. It can be used with any phone not compatible with telephone-pickup hearing aids.

The adapter can be purchased at cost through any Ohio Bell business office for a one-time charge of $7.50.

Galloway said Ohio Bell's proposed increase to 20 cents for calls from coin phones is due to the sharply increased costs fo providing service at the Company's more than 40,000 pay phones throughout the state.

Galloway said, for example, that an outdoor phone booth costs 207 per cent more today than it did in 1952, and wages paid to persons who collect the money from pay telephones have gone up 123 per cent.

Increasing the rate for a coin telephone call will help defray the spiraling costs of providing good, reliable service at these phones for those who must depend on them as their "phone away from home," Galloway explained.

Sludge as fertilizer dangerous?

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Fear that farmers' use of sewage sludge as soil nutrient could result in a harvest of death has prompted three Dayton scientists to start a study of its effect on soil and plant life.

The University of Dayton scientists note that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has emphasized the danger of zinc, copper and cadmium and that a recent study showed traces of each in Dayton's sewage.

The two-year study will begin in July under a $40,000 university grant which matches a similar federal grant.

Major attention will be paid to cadmium, considered toxic in very small amounts and which causes degeneration of the central nervous system, the research directors, geologist Dr. Charles J. Ritter, physicist Dr. Richard Cothern and biologist Dr. E.E. Zamierowski, said.

The elements come from industrial waste products, they said.

Comparisons will be made of traces of the elements in leafy root vegetables such as radishes, spinach and carrots grown with the use of sludge from the Dayton system and sludge from suburban Englewood where there is no industry and consequently no trace elements.

"This project is another step toward breaking down the artificial divisions among the sciences," Cothern said, adding that the concern with the environment is creating more opportunities not only for scientists but humanists as well to pool their talents.

Buttons tag jurors

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — It used to be that a juror in Judge Fred B. Cramer's courtroom would have to inform anyone who asked: "I'm a juror. Please don't talk to me."

That was before the Butler County Common Pleas Court judge started handing out buttons which identified the jurors.

Cramer said the buttons should more effectively prevent other persons from discussing pending trials in their presence.

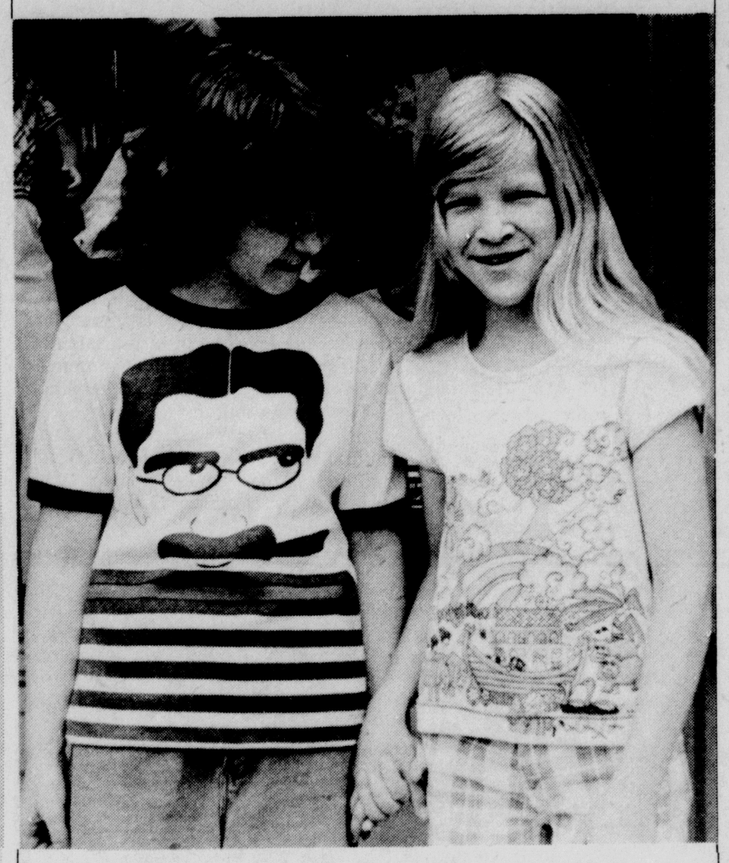

"Frankly, we're looking ahead to the Ruppert and other trials which receive a lot of publicity," said Cramer, referring to the scheduled starting date next month for the trial of James Ruppert, charged in the shooting deaths of 11 members of his family at an Easter Sunday gathering.

Cramer admitted that the button still has not eliminated all possible problems.

For example, he said one juror recently asked him if he could remove the button while he was eating lunch.

Central economic planning blasted

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Murphy, the General Motors chairman, is becoming one of the most vocal defenders of the free enterprise system against what he fears is "a growing distrust — if not hostility — toward business."

"Profit has made General Motors, just as profit has made the United States of America," he said earlier this month at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in Flint, Mich.

Americans should realize, he suggested then, that it isn't only business that lives on profits, but employes, schools, hospitals, welfare systems, police, fire departments, national defense, playgrounds, libraries.

And now, he cautions, all that is at stake if the demands for economic central planning are imposed on the economy, and on the free choice of the producers and customers whose efforts make that economy.

Murphy returned to the theme at the annual meeting Friday in Detroit, advising stockholders that a powerful and vocal ministry is disenchanted with the ability of the American public to "direct, determine and decide for itself."

"The untidiness and unpredictability of the free market offend such people," he said. "They call it irrational, and for remedy they prescribe national economic planning."

He continued: "We ask no favors. We ask only freedom from unreasonable regulation, an entrepreneur's freedom to give the customer what he wants."

And that provokes some questions.

While General Motors maintains it is aware of the needs of the American car buying public, how can one account for the fact that 20 per cent of the domestic market has been lost, temporarily at least, to imports?

Although the advocates of national planning are a varied bunch, they are held together by two common concerns: The concern over big business' ability to rule lives, and the concern over its responsiveness to the public.

The automotive industry, for example, not only affords a living to millions but, because of its cyclical nature, also makes their lives periodically insecure. Layoffs are a way of life.

OVER FORTY KINDS OF IRIS — Mrs. Iona Knisley, 704 Columbus Ave., stands beside her collection of Iris in her backyard. Those in the foreground are German Iris and those in the background are Dutch. All-in-all she has over 40 different species of Iris beautifying her property.

Over 40 kinds of Iris blooming at city home

There is a home on the corner of Columbus Avenue and Delaware Street which really stands out during certain times of the year with the beauty of its flower landscaping.

Iona Knisley, 704 Columbus Ave., is the person responsible - a woman endowed with a "very" green thumb. Presently, she has over 40 different kinds of Iris in bloom and is awaiting the 55 feet of rose brushes surrounded her yard to do the same thing.

"I have always enjoyed working in the yard with flowers. It's a pleasant pasttime and the beauty is so rewarding," Mrs. Knisley explained. "I used to grow flowers many years ago and sell them, but now I care for those in my yard for my own pleasure and the pleasure of those who pause occasionally and look at them."

Mrs. Knisley's Iris are basically two different kinds, German and Dutch and she says 25 of her different roses are from prize winning stock; six of which won prizes in foreign countries.

The care, attention and love Mrs. Knisley gives her flowers shows and it pays to glance at 704 Columbus Avenue, while driving or walking past, to see what's blooming next.

Farm survey starts today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 2,500 Ohio farmers will be contacted personally by state statisticians as the Ohio Crop Reporting Service's mid-year survey of statewise acreage and livestock begins Tuesday, said John M. Stackhouse, state agriculture director.

And survey questionnaires will be mailed to more than 25,000 Ohio farmers.

Survey results will be published June 30, 1975.

Survey results published last February indicated that Ohio farmers would cut back corn acreage by six per cent in 1975, but would increase soybean planting by one per cent.

"However," Stackhouse said, "recent price changes have caused farmers to change their minds, and day-to-day variations in weather conditions could also cause some shifts in planting plans."

Population growth could slow down

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are important signs that population growth in many of the world's impoverished countries may slow down as the result of what one expert sees as a new effort to implement family planning programs.

Lawrence R. Kegan, president of the privately supported Population Crisis Committee, says that while no conclusions about future growth can be made now, it appears some biases such as religious or cultural taboos may be becoming less strict.

Nearly all authorities on world food problems agree that population control will be required in addition to increased farm production if the world is to feed itself a generation or two from now.

Kegan, speaking to a recent conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center, said that since a world population conference in Bucharest last year, requests for financial assistance from United Nations' funds have piled up and now are more than twice the $80 million budgeted for family planning aid.

"Today, every developing country in the world is asking for help and we don't have the money," Kegan said. "It's a complete change."

The Bucharest conference, he said, was the first world meeting on population along political lines. Earlier conferences, Kegan said, involved demographic discussions of statistics and did not attempt to deal with solving the problem of too many people.

Kegan said the world press reported the Bucharest meeting as a failure at the time, an untrue assumption.

Gun show attracts exhibitor record

The Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association's second summer show and companion flea market held Saturday and Sunday on the Fayette County Fairground attracted what is believed to be a record number of exhibitors.

Kenneth Craig, president of the Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association, estimated that nearly 1,000 exhibitors established displays on the Fairground for the two-day show.

Craig said that 1,300 tickets were purchased by exhibitors for the weekend show. However, it is almost impossible to determine exactly how many exhibitors displayed their wares since some of the exhibitors buy tickets one day at a time instead of for both days.

There were a few empty tables inside the Mahan and Fine Arts buildings as hundreds of exhibitors took advantage of the sunny skies and warm temperatures and established their displays outdoors.

Craig noted that a total of 2,600 cars paid the 25-cent parking fee over the weekend.

The hot weather took its toll, Craig said, as most of the exhibitors vacated the fairground by 4 p.m. Sunday. Attendance was down somewhat on Sunday and it could have been blamed on the Memorial Day weekend.

The competition was for the top Merwin-Holbert gun. A Merwin-Holbert revolver, owned by a Washington C.H. man, captured honors in the competition. Only two guns were entered in the competition.

The Merwin-Holbert revolver, which was popular in a period from 1875 to 1890, had the unusual feature in that it could be changed from a short-barrelled weapon to a long-barrelled model in approximately 10 seconds.

Craig said the weapon was one of few produced during that period with a built-in extractor. It extracted only empty cartridges.

According to Craig, the weapon was also known as a "companion arm" since the revolver and rifle used the same type of cartridges.

The next gun show will be held June 28-29 on the Fayette County Fairground.

Man's every day a Memorial Day

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Since he came home after World War I, Joe R. Cox has made every day Memorial Day.

"The flu hit us in the winter of 1918 and I attended a lot of funerals," recalled the 81-year-old veteran. "There were so many dead, the soldiers were just wrapped in blankets, put into boxes and buried. It got to me. Same as it go to a number of other men."

Since he came home, Cox's mission has been to make sure that servicemen will always have a place where they can be memorialized.

There has been no shortage of war dead to honor. Cox and two other men were chosen to form a committee which organized the city's first Memorial Day program in 1920. At that ceremony, there were 15 Civil War veterans and 50 men from the Spanish-American War.

The committee also decided to mark the undesignated graves of Civil War and Spanish-American War victims at Woodside Cemetery.

"There were about 15 or 20 unmarked graves," said Cox, a postman here. "You came to the cemetery hunting for grandpa's grave and couldn't find it. We made temporary wooden crosses to mark the sites.

During World War II, Cox suggested that Ohio establish "Little Arlingtons" in each city, for people who had lost someone in the war and had no place to bury them.

"I suggested we all go home and establish a memorial for the men—a place where people could bury their soldiers and sailors if they wanted to," Cox said.

Cox, who had helped carry the gravestones for the undesignated Civil War graves, designed the marble crosses for the World War II victims—the name of the victim on the cross arm, with the service rank, date of birth, and place and date of death on the base of the stone.

At Woodside Memorial Cemetery, Cox has watched caretakers prepare 166 of his marble crosses. He estimated however that only 64 persons are actually buried here.

"A lot of the men were never found during the war," Cox said. "My greatest pride is in knowing we have provided a place for the next of kin to come and place flowers and memorialize the dead."

Eagles auxiliary presents check for book purchases

The Washington C. H. Fraternal Order of Eagles Auxiliary has presented a check for $100 to the Carnegie Public Library in Washington C. H. for the purchase of books or provision of services for senior citizens.

The presentation will be duplicated across the United States and Canada by Eagle auxiliaries to their respective libraries. Funds were made available to the auxiliaries by the Eagles Memorial Foundation in appreciation of their cooperation and support of the senior citizen-oriented Golden Eagle Fund, which the foundation administers, according to Mrs. Jeanie Minshall, president of the Washington C.H. Eagle auxiliary.

Eagles nationally raise money so that the Golden Eagle Fund can provide grants to charitable organizations functioning in some field of concern for the aged.

The Eagles Memorial Foundation, with headquarters in Bradenton, Fla., was established as a living memorial to Eagle servicemen who died in the line of duty. It provides educational and medical-dental aid not only to the families of such servicemen, but has expanded to provide educational benefits to the children of Eagle firemen and law officers who die in the line of duty.

Libraries were chosen as recipients because of the helpful service offered by them to senior citizens.

Mrs. Ford goes on trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford leaves Wednesday for Europe on her first foreign trip with the President amid signs that she is ready to assume a much more active role as First Lady.

Plagued by illness over the past nine months, Mrs. Ford reports she now has regained her health and strength and is in "tip-top shape."

She has been proving it by increasing her activities, ranging from dancing past midnight on recent occasions to taking on a four-day trip to California, where she made speeches, gave interviews and toured a tent-city for Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

Mrs. Ford is even looking down the road to campaigning for her husband's election in 1976.

Tanzania turns down demands

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Beverly Carter says he has hopes that two American students and a young Dutch woman held by guerrillas in Zaire will be released despite the Tanzanian government's refusal to meet the kidnapers' demands.

Guerrillas of the Marxist Popular Revolutionary party threatened to shoot the three hostages unless the Tanzanian government within 60 days paid them $460,000, freed a number of the party's leaders held in Tanzanian jails and handed over hundreds of rifles and cannon and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

"Tanzania will not be blackmailed," said President Julius Nyerere's press secretary after a cabinet meeting. "The Tanzanian government flatly rejects all of the demands. Now we must wait."

He said this was the "final government statement on the matter."

Carter after a meeting with Nyerere told newsmen: "We are not without hope that a resolution of the problem can free the remaining students." He said he was not sure what the U.S. or Tanzanian government's next steps would be.

Skating party set

The Washington C. H. Firemen's Association will sponsor a skating party at Roller Haven Wednesday night, May 28. The party will begin at 6:30 p.m. and continue until 9:30.

Tickets for the party may be obtained at the Washington C. H. fire station or from any fireman. Advance tickets will be 75 cents; tickets at the door will be $1.

Several cakewalks will be held during the three-hour party.

Memorial Day mourners robbed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Memorial Day mourners standing over graves of relatives in two cemeteries here were robbed by teenagers, police said.

Two men, about 18 years old, robbed Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Kehoe of Euclid, taking $75 in cash and a watch before fleeing, according to police.

Police also said Mrs. Janet Gallagher of Cleveland Heights and her 14-year-old daughter were placing flowers on a grave at St. Joseph Cemetery when two youths, about 15 years old, stole $20 from Mrs. Gallagher and 50 cents from her daughter.

Former WCH man appointed zone manager with Ward's

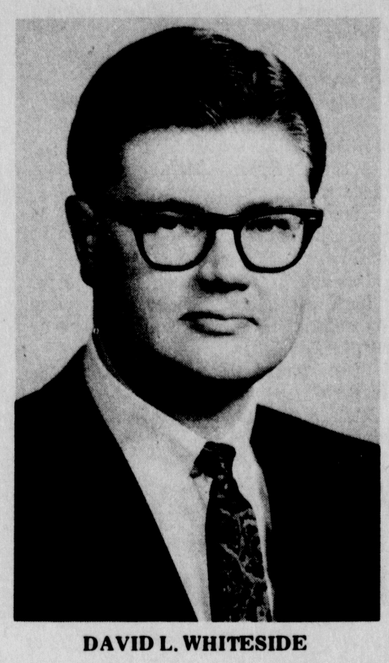

RICHMOND, IND. — The appointment of David L. Whiteside, formerly of Washington C. H. as manager of a Montgomery Ward and Co. zone organization, with offices in Richmond, Ind., has been announced by J. Burke Gelling, vice president and general manager of the company's north central region.

As zone manager, Whiteside is responsible for retail store operations in 14 communities in the southern sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Whiteside joined Montgomery Ward and Co. in 1963 as a department manager trainee in the retail store at 139 W. Court St., in Washington C. H. He was born and raised in Washington C. H.

He was promoted to assistant store manager in 1966 and was transferred a year later from Washington C. H. to Vicennes, Ind., where he held the same position until 1968. From 1968 to 1969, Whiteside was merchandise manager in the company's Lima (Ohio) retail store. He was named manager of the Zanesville retail store in 1973, and held that position until his present appointment. His performance in the Zanesville store earned him second place in the company's 1972 "store manager of the year" contest.

Whiteside attended Ohio State University, Columbus, and Wilmington College, where he majored in English and sociology. He and his wife, Margit, make their home in Richmond, Ind., where he is a member of the Kiwanis Club and Elks lodge.

Exploration scholarships go to Ohio, Indiana students

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Richard E. Panning, 17, of Napoleon, Ohio, said he is going to an archaeological dig in Chadron, Neb., this summer, as one of the Ohio students chosen as winners of the fourth annual Exploration Scholarship competition.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced three students from Ohio and three students from Indiana were selected among the 110 chosen to participate in the program's 18 scientific expeditions in the United States, South America, the Caribbean, Europe, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

The Napolean High School junior said he will help an archeologist search for Indian artifacts at a bison kill site.

Projects include expeditions to the Bahamas to assess the impact of pollution on its coral reefs; a study of sea otters off the California coast; a trip to Wyoming to search for the remains of prehistoric animals and an expedition to Nevada to excavate a 7,000-year-old rock shelter.

Other teams of winners will work with Yale archeologists excavating Eli Whitney's gun factory in New Haven. Several more will join scientists in England, Israel, Majorca, Peru, Nepal, Ghana and Ethiopia to assist expeditions.

The following other young men and women were chosen from among 5,000 applicants:

Ohio: Lydia M. Furman, Cleveland Heights; Philip A. Guentert, Fairview Park.

Indiana: Cynthia J. Bender, Kendallville; Mary E. Brewster, West Lafayette; Katrina A. Roch; Muncie.

Shooting victims improving

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — One of nine persons wounded during a 2½-hour weekend shooting spree in Dayton was in serious condition Monday. Hospital officials said all others still hospitalized were improving.

They were wounded early Saturday morning in an incident in which two persons were killed and two teen-age hostages raped before Russell Lee Smith, 28, of Dayton took his own life.

Officials at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Dayton said James Bailey Jr., 27, was in serious condition Monday. Earlier, he was said to be in fair condition.

At Miami Valley Medical Hospital, officials said all five persons hospitalized there, including four members of one family, had improved. They listed the following conditions: Heather Baltozer, 6, Trotwood, fair; Charles Baltozer, 38, good; Carole Baltozer, 38, good; Charles Baltozer Jr., good; and Ann Wencelwicz, good.

Three other persons wounded during the incident were treated and released.

No motive for the incident was offered by police, but they said it began shortly after Smith accused another man of dating his girlfriend, 16-yearold Joan Gatewood of Dayton.

Miss Gatewood and Paulette Couch, 25, of Miamisburg were killed, police said.

7 drownings mar holiday across Ohio

By The Associated Press

Seven Ohioans were drowned and two were missing following Memorial Day water accidents throughout Ohio Monday. The known dead included four teenagers.

A double drowning occurred at a small lake near Mill Creek, in Cincinnati, when a 16-year-old youth perished trying to rescue his 13-year-old sister, Cincinnati police said.

The victims were identified by police as Dwayne and Denise Harper, both of suburban Cincinnati.

The drownings occurred while the two victims were on a swimming outing with another brother and sister at Crystal Lake.

Ron Granger, 40, of Coshocton, drowned while trying to rescue his son, Darren, 14, in Muskingum River near Dresden, authorities in Muskingum County said. The son also drowned.

Dave Doty, 50, of Coshocton, and his son, Danny, 12, were missing and feared drowned in the same incident, authorities said.

Melvin E. Salley, 25, of Dayton, drowned in the Little Miami River south of Oregonia, sheriff deputies said.

Inheritance passes through the female line of the Cuna Indians on Panama's San Blas Islands. Men nominally head the families, but they must live with and work for the bride's relatives. Women own the property, including the coconut trees that yield the island's most important resource.

Vet dons uniform, medals for holiday; years fall away

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Twice a year, Jack Siegel gets up early, pins seven medals to his chest and dons an old American Legion cap.

"I put them on, I feel proud," Siegel said. "They make me alive again."

Seigel, 75, who saw service in World Wars I and II, puts on his frayed and tattered ribbons, brass bars and Purple Heart and goes to Miami Beach to honor the dead on Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

Siegel and about 300 other veterans and auxiliary women brought flags and flowers Monday to a stone war monument beside Miami Beach City Hall.

For years Siegel played "Taps" on his bugle while flags waved over the caps of the Legion, the Disabled American Veterans, the VFW, the Jewish War Veterans, the Veterans of World War I, the Masonic War Veterans, the Legion of Valor.

Now the Siegel bugle rests in a case at Post 85 Legion Hall.

"You can't bugle with false teeth," he said.

This day teen-agers from Miami Beach Senior High School played martial music.

Trumpeter Bruce Turkel, 17, waited nervously. "It'll be all right when I start to play," he said.

The speakers said their pieces. Pedestrians hurried by on Washington Avenue, few glancing at the ceremony at the flower-banked monument. Four M16 rifles cracked.

Young Turkel lifted his silver trumpet and sent the clear, haunting, notes of "Taps" over the crowd.

"The kid, he did a good job," Seigel said as he turned for home.

If the thought of living just on Social Security doesn't convince you of the need for our new retirement account, the $1,500 tax deduction should.

As a hard-working person you've probably got the same two problems every hard-working person has. Today's cost of living and tomorrow's cost of retiring.

But, we have just the plan that solves them both quite nicely.

THE INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT

Here's how it works:

If you are employed and not covered by a retirement plan, you can now begin a retirement plan of your own. (The same applies to your spouse.)

We call it the Individual Retirement Account. Open it free at our bank, that simple.

You may contribute up to $1,500 or 15% of your earned income each year, whichever figure is less. To further simplify things, you may contribute a set amount each month to the account.

SAVE ON TAXES NOW

The total amount you contribute to your Individual Retirement Account — up to $1,500 — is taken as a deduction to your Gross Annual Income at tax time.

As an example, if both you and your spouse are eligible, together you may contribute up to $3,000 yearly — and each of you is allowed a $1,500 deduction at year end.

HOW YOUR SAVINGS GROW

Plus that, we take your contributions and tuck them safely away at a 5[illegible]% annual interest-rate and back them with $40,000 worth of F.D.I.C. insurance. Your money grows at a 5.61% annual yield, as principle and interest are left on deposit. Even better, not one penny of the interest is taxed until you decide to withdraw at retirement.

If you contribute $1,500 at the beginning of each year and are taxed 25%, the savings difference between an ordinary taxable account and an Individual Retirement Account would be as follows:

	TAXABLE ACCOUNT	INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT	SAVINGS DIFFERENCE
After 5 years	$ 6,376	$ 8,861	$ 2,485
After 10 years	14,211	20,507	6,296
After 15 years	23,839	35,809	11,970
After 20 years	35,671	55,917	20,246
After 25 years	50,210	82,341	32,131
After 30 years	68,076	117,064	48,988

SAVE MORE MONEY FOR RETIREMENT

Under the law, withdrawals from this account may not begin before 59[illegible] years of age, or no later than the year you reach 70[illegible].

Funds can be withdrawn in one lump sum upon retirement. Or may be taken in set periodic amounts.

Then — and only then — are you taxed, and only on the amount you withdraw from the account each year. The tax you pay on this money should be lower, considering the reduced income level of those years.

All in all, the Individual Retirement Account is the most sensible way to supplement your Social Security and retire in peace and comfort.

And, it's probably the easiest way to find a $1,500 deduction. And $1,500 for your wife.

Bench, Reds stop Expos twice

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The fickle fans at Riverfront Stadium have been up and down on Johnny Bench during his career with the Cincinnati Reds.

Monday they were up — literally.

Bench, who has had a love-hate relationship with the crowds at Cincinnati, was treated to a rare standing ovation after hitting a grand slam home run that keyed the Reds to a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Expos and a doubleheader sweep.

JOHNNY BENCH

The 25,034 fans at the Reds' ballpark, already giddy over the 4-3 victory in the opener, went absolutely beserk when Bench's homer capped a five-run rally in the fifth inning of the second game and incidentally tied him for the Reds' all-time grand slam leadership.

"That's exciting," said Bench when informed that his bases-loaded shot gave him six for his career, tying Vada Pinson's figure with the Reds. "Wow, that's really something for a club established this long."

In Monday's other National League games, the Chicago Cubs stopped the Atlanta Braves 6-0; the New York Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3; the Pittsburgh Pirates bombed the Houston Astros 10-2; the Philadelphia Phillies took the San Francisco Giants 1-0 in 11 innings and the San Diego Padres beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-6.

Montreal's Steve Renko had a two-hitter and a 4-0 lead going into the Cincinnati fifth of the second game. Then Bench and his teammates got busy.

Light-hitting Darrell Chaney opened the rally with his second single of the day. Renko struck out pinch hitter Ed Armbrister, then issued consecutive walks to Pete Rose, Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan to force in a run.

Bench then drilled his 10th homer of the year to take over league leadership and increase his RBI total to 33.

Red Sox 7, Rangers 5

Rodriguez added a two-run double off Tom Burgmeier.

One of Minnesota's hits off Ruhle was Tom Kelly's first big league home run.

Prep sports titles up for contention

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The boys baseball and the first-ever girls track meet take over the limelight this weekend in the final Ohio high school sports championships of this school year.

The semifinals and finals of the baseball tournament will be played Friday and Saturday on the Ohio State fields with new champions assured in all three Classes.

Class AAA titleholder Wickliffe, Cincinnati Reading in AA and Middletown Fenwick in A were beaten earlier in the playoffs.

In the Class AAA semifinals, Dayton Chaminade-Julienne will face Columbus West and Parma Senior tangles with Youngstown Chaney.

The Class AA semifinals send Columbus St. Charles against Hamilton Badin and Medina Buckeye against Bryan.

The Class A semifinals have Russia battling Old Ford and West Salem Northwestern playing Lucasville Valley.

The girls track meet will follow the same format as the boys last weekend with competition in three classes spread over two days in Ohio Stadium.

The boys track titles went to old hand Cleveland Glenville Class AAA and newcomers Columbus Mifflin in Class AA and Yellow Springs in Class A.

Glenville won its third straight crown and eighth in 10 years with Derrek Harbour scoring 26 of the Tarblooders' 29 points. The swift junior was named the meeting's outstanding Class AAA performer.

Mifflin was a runaway winner in Class AA while Yellow Springs outscored defending Class A champion Columbus Wehrle by 10 points.

Eleven records fell and another was tied.

Dan Oliver of Class AA Wooster Triway and Pete Westhoven of Class A Liberty Center won both hurdles and were selected by sports writers as the outstanding performers in those classes.

In tennis, Mike Carruthers of Bexley and the Toledo Ottawa Hills doubles team of Mike Rademayer and Jim Ketcham won their second straight Class A-AA titles.

Jim Flower of Fremont Ross lost his Class AAA singles championship, bowing to 1974 runnerup Erick Iskersky of Toledo St. John. Columbus Whetstone's George Learmonth and Randy McLaughlin captured the Class AAA doubles.

Jeff Merchants win first game

The Jeffersonville Babe Ruth Merchants started off their exhibition season on the right foot with a win Monday over Springfield.

Benny Allen was the winning pitcher giving up four runs on six hits and John St. Clair came on in relief to get the save in the 14-4 victory.

St. Clair led the Merchants' hitting attack with four safeties and Cecil Sizemore pounded out two triples to provide plenty of support.

Springfield starter Everhart took the loss giving up eleven hits.

The Merchants' next exhibition game is slated for Sunday at home against Sedalia. Also Sunday the Jeffersonville Lions will travel to Springfield for their first game.

The two Jeffersonville Babe Ruth teams have joined the Green Land League. This is a newly established league comprised of teams from Sedalia, South Charleston, Mechanicsburg, Springfield and Jeffersonville.

The Babe Ruth regular season play opens June 8 with the Jeff Merchants hosting South Charleston and the Jeff Lions visiting Mechanicsburg.

Little Leaguers to resume action

The Washington C.H.-Union Township Little League will resume play Tuesday night after the Holiday layoff.

Last Thursday, two major league games and one minor league contest were completed. In the majors, the Levi Boys ripped the Downtown Drug 18-7 by making good use of an eight run first inning, which the Lumberjacks got five runs in the top of the sixth to edge the Charge-A-Checks 8-7 despite being outhit 11 to 8.

The minor leagues first game Thursday was called off because of tornado warnings and in the second scheduled contest Helfrichs bombed Roller Haven 24-3.

Ensign Lin Lee wins again at Lebanon

Ensign Lin Lee, a trotter owned by Linda Joseph, won the seventh race Friday at Lebanon giving the horse three victories in three starts.

Don Joseph piloted the Fayette County horse to its best time of the year completing the mile in 2:08.2.

Fair Pebbles, owned and driven by Ted Baker of Bloomingburg, took second in a race at Scioto Downs Saturday for young horses. The horse, winner of the two-year-old pace at the county's annual Horsemen's Matinee on Mother's Day completed the mile course in 2:12.

Unser takes 'Indy' 435

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It was about two hours after the Indianapolis 500 had ended.

The sky, which had been filled with ferocious thunderclouds and terrifying streaks of lightning, was now bright and sunny.

The track, which had been drenched with the fury that only a sudden Midwest storm can bring, was now drying out.

And Johnny Rutherford ambled over to Chief Steward Tom Binford and, perhaps only half jokingly, muttered: "Okay. You already know how to start a race. Now isn't it about time you learned how to finish one?"

Binford had, technically, ended the Indy 500, ordering Pat Vidan to bring out both the red and black-and-white checkered flags, the first signaling a halt to this 59th classic in American auto racing, the second signaling Bobby Unser that he'd won it.

But in reality it was the rain — a downpour that turned the huge grassy infield at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway into a mudbath and the 2½-mile asphalt track into a rippling stream — which cheated Rutherford out of a shot at a second straight victory and officially renamed Sunday's race the Indianapolis 435.

After that many miles, after 174 of the scheduled 200 laps, after a race that had nearly half a million fans holding their collective breath when Tom Sneva's car disintegrated in a methanol firestorm, after a race that Wally Dallenbach seemed almost certain to win before his engine went "poof," after A.J. Foyt's dream of an unprecedented fourth triumph here ended in the frustration of a pit stop ... after all that, Bobby Unser matched his younger brother, Al, with his second Indy victory.

"I think he deserved it. I think we need the money in the family," Al kidded during Monday night's victory dinner, eyeing Bobby's winning paycheck of $214,031 and his own slim 16th-place pickings of $18,300.

And Bobby did, indeed, deserve it. He ran a cool, cautious, clever race, totally unlike the one he won in 1968, when he locked his right knee, rammed the accelerator to the floor and kept it there all the way, simply outrunning the rest of the 33-car field.

"I was raised in racing that, when the green flag drops, you stand on the gas and the fastest guy wins the race," Bobby said. "For many years, as everyone knows, that's the way it was....

"Of course, now it's a little bit different and thank God we have radios so we can correspond back and forth, talk things over and plan things out ... We knew we had to make a strong, calculated run. We had to run a smart race."

Plan he did with Dan Gurney, the builder and owner of his sleek, blue No. 48 car, an Offenhauser-powered All-American Eagle. Rather than try to burn out Foyt, Rutherford, Dallenbach and the rest of the field, he chose to simply try to stay with the leaders.

Bill Puterbaugh top Indy rookie

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In auto racing circles they're called strokers. They just hang back, let everyone pass when they want and hope they'll finish in one piece.

To be called a stroker also is considered an insult by many drivers, but for Bill Puterbaugh the strategy paid off with rookie of the year honors at Monday night's Indianapolis 500-mile race victory dinner.

"I saw guys coming up behind me all day and I just got out of their way and let 'em go," said the 38-year-old Indianapolis veteran of the sprint and dirt track circuits.

"We just wanted to stay out of trouble and finish the race."

He finished seventh, eight spots higher than he started and five better than his closest rookie competitor, Sheldon Kinser of Bloomington, Ind.

Puterbaugh was almost too cautious, though.

He wanted to end his first run on the champ car circuit prematurely after developing rear end problems.

"I thought maybe I had lost some rubber on a tire because the car was really vibrating," he recalled. "I went around once and came back into the pits and said, 'Hey, something's wrong with this car.' They (his crew) said, 'Go ahead and run until it quits.'"

The problem turned out to be a broken ring and pinion gear and shortly after Puterbaugh returned to the race, the yellow light came on. He was able to finish the race, which was stopped at 435 miles by a sudden downpour, without needing fourth gear or the turbocharger on his Eagle-Offenhauser.

"I was ready to quit," Puterbaugh said. "I just didn't want to take a chance on crashing the car."

Nevertheless, the day still ended in a wreck. Puterbaugh, Bentley Warren and Jimmy Caruthers slid into each other on the final lap in the main straight as rain made the sleek, treadless machines uncontrollable.

Puterbaugh said the top rookie honor meant more to him than the $1,000 prize that went along with it.

He hopes it will boost his driving reputation and help him get another ride at Indianapolis next year. Lee Elkins, who owned the car Puterbaugh drove Sunday, is 62 years old and in failing health and probably will not be here next May, Puterbaugh said.

Meanwhile, he plans one more try at championship racing this year — next month's Pocono 500.

Sabres need new victory over Flyers

BUFFALO (AP) — There have been complaints throughout this National Hockey League championship series that the season lasts far too long, that the players are mentally and physically weary, and that the day after Memorial Day is no time to be playing a winter sport.

Yet the Buffalo Sabres hope with all their might that the season will last two games longer. Trailing the Philadelphia Flyers three victories to two in the Stanley Cup's final series, a loss would mean the start of an unbearable summer. A victory in tonight's sixth game would send the series back to Philadelphia for Thursday night's deciding contest.

For their part, the Flyers would be more than happy to end the series and the season on the road, then return to their devoted fans for a victory parade Wednesday morning.

"We must win Tuesday," said Philadelphia center Terry Crisp. "We blew two games in Buffalo already and they'll give us a good game Tuesday. The toughest game to win is always the last one."

It's also the toughest to lose, and the Sabres have no intention of going down without a fight — if they are to go down at all.

"We've got to give all we've got," said Buffalo defenseman Jim Schoenfeld. "That's all there is to it. You don't hold back for anything and hope you can win two more hockey games. But we've got to get an early lead to do it."

Gary Allbritain wins Ohio State 500 race

HARTFORD, Ohio, (AP) — Gary Allbritain of Tiffin claimed a racing victory Monday at Sharon Speedway in the Ohio State 500 for supermodifieds cars.

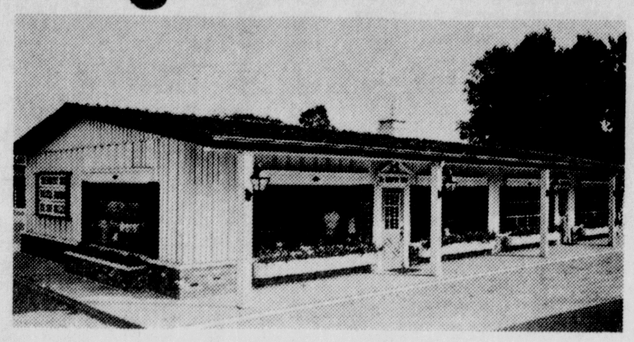

Allbritain's victory in the 100-lap feature race on the half-mile asphalt track came over second-place finisher Bobby Baker of Salt Lake City, Utah. Marvin Carmen of Union City, Mich., placed third.

Victory Meadow wins

CINCINNATI (AP) — Topinabee was disqualified for interfering with Carla's Cutie in the stretch and Victory Meadow was declared the winner of Monday's Memorial Day Handicap at River Downs.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten" is on ABC-TV tonight. It's a brilliant show, but we warn that it's a shade gloomy and may leave you depressed. So take precautions.

Brew a nice pot of tea, invite over your most loyal friends and hire an Irish tenor with no demons in his head to sing "I'm Off to Dublin in the Green" during the commercial breaks.

That'll gird you for 2½ hours of strong drama about tortured love, drinking, deception and three-way guilt on a seedy Connecticut farm owned by a tormented, alcoholic Broadway has-been and run by a rundown old Irishman and his slatternly, heavy-set daughter.

Jason Robards as the actor, Ed Flanders as the Irishman and Colleen Dewhurst as the daughter each turn in superb performances in this original-cast reprise of the play's 1973 revival on Broadway.

The drama centers with considerable anguish on the possibility actor Jim Tyrone (Robards) will sell the farm on which impoverished Phil Hogan (Flanders) and his daughter Josie (Miss Dewhurst) live.

They're way behind in rent, Tryone is low on funds, and the prissy, well-to-do owner of a neighboring farm is willing to pay $10,000 for Tyrone's turf just to get the slovenly Hogans off it.

To complicate matters, the boozy, world-weary actor is a friend of the Hogans. And Josie insists on claiming she's made love with all the lads in the neighborhood, which surprisingly dismays the thespian, a veteran and wanton wencher.

Despite her brazen talk and coarse ways, he sees in her only virginal innocence and beauty. And in her fashion she's sweet on him, as they say. She knows he's in misery.

Despite this, she and her father hatch a plot to keep the farm.

He'll take Tyrone to town and get him drunk. After that, she'll seduce the actor. Then Old Dad will arrive at dawn with witnesses, find the two in bed and, as he puts it, "I raise the roof and threaten him if he don't marry you."

It's a wee bit more complex than that, of course, and viewers who've never seen the play will soon learn that Things Aren't What They Seem to Be in the course of this poetically written view of sad and sorry lives.

It's not pure tragedy, of course. The play often sparkles with bittersweet wit and the Irish brogue of the Hogans has a way of softening the harshest words — of which there are many.

Viewers who grouse that commercials wreck the continuity of TV dramas will be pleasantly surprised to find no commercial breaks except at the end of each of this play's four acts.

Opening lead - ten of spades.

Guess situations may perplex, confound and bewilder players from time to time, but if you know anyone who guesses right a high percentage of the time, rest assured that it's not just luck. The chances are that the guy knows what he's doing.

Take this case where West leads a spade. South wins with the jack, draws two rounds of trumps, cashes two more spades, and exits with a heart to force the opponents to lead diamonds.

Let's say East wins the first heart with the ten and the second one with the king. He must return a diamond, for otherwise declarer gets a ruff and discard and makes the hand.

South now has a crucial decision to make on the low diamond return. He must guess whether to play the ten or the queen. If he guesses right, he makes the contract; if he guesses wrong, he goes down.

If declarer thinks East has the jack and West the king, he plays the ten. If he thinks East has the king and West the jack, he plays the queen. (If either defender has both honors, declarer's play does not matter.)

South is not faced with a really difficult guess if he is on the ball. He should play the ten.

Playing the ten is simply a matter of logic. Declarer assumes that if East had the king of diamonds, the defenders would have arranged for West to win the second round of hearts and lead a diamond.

Since they failed to do so, it follows that West must have the king. Once declarer reaches this stage in his reasoning, he cannot gain by playing the queen. He plays the ten and hopes for the best.

Seven tables were in play Tuesday at the Washington Duplicate Bridge Club. Players were seated either north-south or east-west. Topping all pairs were John Lachat and Mrs. Gay Jackson with a score of 61. Just behind was another east-west pair, Bruce Strickling and Mrs. Larry Coil, with 60. Finishing first north-south were Mrs. J.C. Wright and George Malek with 58½ while J.C. Wright and Mrs. Craig Vandemark finished second with 58.

In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

For three hundred years those notebooks remained secret, until 1779 when they were deciphered and published, and what do you know; Leonardo da Vinci had diagramed and described the camera there in his notes. From the fourteen hundreds up to the present, the camera, photography, and the art involved has fascinated thousands of people who have been victims of the bug. Now I speak here of photographers, not camera owners. There's one thing you gotta get straight right now: Better than 95 per cent of the people who own quality cameras are not photographers by any stretch of the imagination. They're just num-nums who use a quality camera to shoot snap shots that could just as well be made with a low-priced Instamatic. Don't knock it, having the fine camera around their neck gives them prestige, and their purchase keeps the price of the good stuff down where the photo artist can afford it. Some of these folks will feel the bite of the bug and will learn to use their camera to make great pix. They'll join the inner circle of lensmen that use the camera creatively. Bless them. The reward is beyond description.

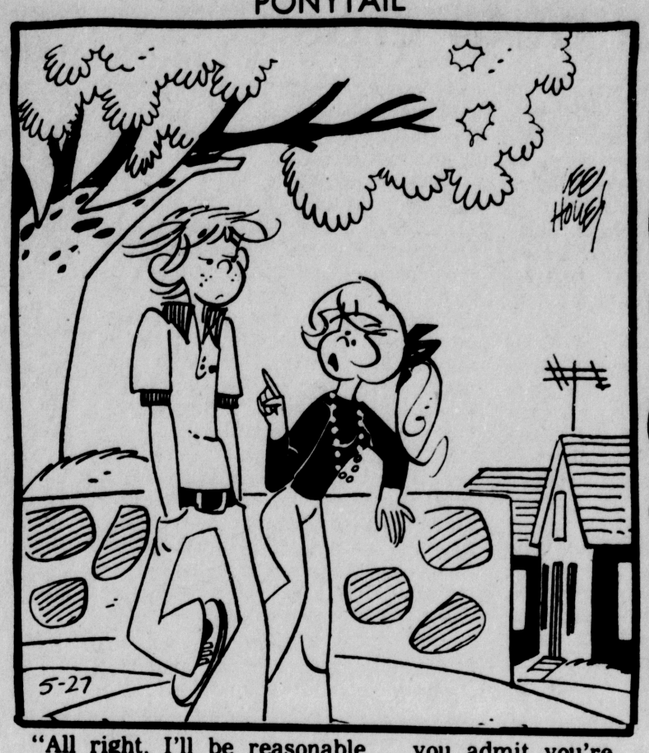

The thing that really turns me on is seeing these people develop into creative artists. I get the biggest kick out of seeing these cameramen learn to see beauty, and then learn to get it on film. That's all there is to it: see beauty and capture it with the camera. Sound simple? Believe me, dad, it's that simple — and then again, it isn't. The science of photography you can teach; the art you can only see develop as the beginner develops his skill and feels the thrill of using the skill creatively. There's one thing for sure: you simply must have complete control of the science of photography to find if you have the flame of creativity. If you never learn to use your equipment you'll never know if you have the potential. Give yourself the chance. You'll be the winner.

Five hurt in rural auto crash

A young New Holland man is presently listed in fair condition at Fayette Memorial Hospital, suffering from injuries sustained in a one-car accident Monday afternoon, which also resulted in the injury of his four passengers and the demolishment of his auto.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported Roger A. Wood, 21, lost control of his vehicle on a right curve, at 4 p.m. Monday, while traveling east on U.S. 22, five and six-tenths miles east of Washington C.H. and skidded off the left side of the road 81 feet and into a fence belonging to Marion Frantz of New Holland. The auto then overturned and came to rest on its left side in Frantz's field.

Wood suffered possible head injuries and a back injury and his passengers, Larry R. Hudson, 15, New Holland; Leslie A. Hudson, 16, New Holland; and Vaughn Bryant, 20, New Holland; were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by ambulance, treated and released; Larry Hudson for back pain and head injury; Leslie Hudson for head, left shoulder and knee injury and Bryant for a fractured right hand and abrasions to the knee and elbow. A fourth passenger, Albert A. Wood, 18, New Holland, claimed injury from the mishap, but was not treated according to hospital officials.

Wood was charged with reckless operation.

This was one of several injury-accidents reported by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department over the Memorial Day weekend. They also reported four motorcycle mishaps and three additional auto accidents. Washington C.H. police investigated eight accidents, one of which involved the injury of a Washington C.H. boy and girl on a motorcycle.

SHERIFF

SATURDAY, 7:45 p.m. — A motorcycle driven by John I. Blain, 27, Springfield, went out of control on Ohio 729, two-tenths of a mile west of Jeffersonville, skidded 56 feet, flipped over and slid 38 feet and then traveled 52 feet in the ditch before damaging sod and bushes belonging to William Hall Jr., Jeffersonville. Blain, who showed visible signs of injury at the scene, was not treated according to hospital officials. Sheriff's deputies reported a second Springfield man, Richard G. Hisey, 26, was also injured when he attempted to help Blain by picking up the fallen cycle which in turn fell off Hisey and resulted in a laceration of his right leg. He was not treated either. Blain was charged with reckless operation and his cycle was moderately damaged.

MONDAY, 9:50 a.m. — A motorcycle driven by Albert E. Longberry, 28, of 225 Kennedy Ave., ran onto the right berm of U.S. 35, six-tenths of a mile southeast of Washington C.H., and overturned in the right ditch, throwing Longberry off. Longberry showed visible signs of injury, but was not treated.

10:30 a.m. — A car driven by Donald R. Curtis, 16, of London, ran off the right side of Palmer road, three and one-tenth miles from Washington C.H. and entered a steep roadside ditch. Curtis, who was unhurt, told sheriff's deputies he had swerved to miss a car exiting Sugar Creek Cemetery, which had driven into his path.

1:50 p.m. — A Kent couple were injured on a motorcycle, while traveling south on Hidy Road, one and three-tenths miles northeast of Jeffersonville, when the cycle went out of control on gravel and overturned throwing Tom and Claris LeMaster, ages 42 and 39 respectively. Tom was treated at Fayette Memorial Hospital for right hand, arms and knee abrasions and Claris was treated for a lacerated left foot and abrasions of the hip. Both people were released.

3:30 p.m. — A motorcycle driven by Mac Dews Jr., 47, of 414½ E. Court St., struck a fence and went out of control on a private lane owned by Bob Huff, Mark Road. Dews suffered lacerations of both knees and chest and stomach abrasions. He was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital.

11:30 p.m. — A car driven by Steven C. Stebelton, 18, of 1300 Nelson Place, struck a guardrail on U.S. 62, one and eight-tenths miles northeast of Washington C.H., when Stebelton failed to negotiate a right curve. His car flipped over on its top in the ditch and was demolished. Stebelton was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by sheriff's deputies, where he was treated for chest pain and headache and then released.

TUESDAY, 12:20 a.m. — A car driven by Donald E. Jacobs, 21, London, failed to negotiate a right curve on Lewis Road, four-tenths of a mile north of Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, and struck a cement post owned by Roy Hagler, 5197 Lewis Rd., and a road reflector sign. Jacobs was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by sheriff's deputies and treated for back and head injury and then released. He was charged with driving left of center.

POLICE

MONDAY, 6:38 p.m. — A Washington C.H. boy and girl were injured when the motorcycle they were riding failed to negotiate a left curve on High Street, near the Charlotte Court intersection. Police reported the cycle, driven by Kenneth R. Knisley, 19, of 419 S. Fayette St., and ridden by Nancy A. Brunner, 17, of 416 Albin Ave., traveled off the road and into a driveway, where it struck a parked car belonging to Gary D. Thompson, 606 Lamar Court. The impact ruptured the auto's gas tank and Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to wash the spilled gasoline from the street and driveway. Knisley and Miss Brunner were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released: Knisley for abrasions of the face, hands and legs and Miss Brunner for abrasions of the face, a bruised elbow and a lacerated right leg. Knisley was cited by police for reckless operation and driving without a motorcycle license endorsement.

SUNDAY, 2:19 p.m. — A rear-end collision involving cars driven by Arnold E. Ward, 36, of 94 Jamison Rd., and Sandra E. Lowe, 20, of 509 Eastern Ave., occurred on Columbus Avenue, near Elm Street. Ward was cited for reckless operation and driving while intoxicated. Only minutes previous to this incident, Ward struck a car belonging to George R. Jordan, 524 Lewis St., parked on Court Street, near the North Street intersection.

SATURDAY, 6:20 p.m. — A car driven by Roger A. Longberry, 26, of 1329 Pearl St., was struck in the rear by an unidentified driver on Court Street, near the intersection of North Street. Longberry told police he instructed the driver at fault to pull out of traffic, but the man just drove away.

SATURDAY, 4:42 p.m. — An accident involving cars driven by Donald E. Markley, 44, CCC Highway-W, and Lorraine Hamby, 40, of 529 E. Market St., occurred in Frisch's parking lot, Clinton Avenue. Markley was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Wood of New Holland, went out of control on a right curve on U.S. 22 at 4 p.m. Monday and skidded off the road, striking a fence belonging to Marion Frantz, New Holland, and becoming demolished. Wood is presently listed in fair condition at Fayette Memorial Hospital and his four passengers, also from New Holland, were treated and released.

Rain, hail mark U.S. weather

By The Associated Press

Scattered thundershowers lingered over portions of the eastern and southern sections of the country today.

Heavy thunderstorm activity prevailed in an area extending from northeast Texas through the lower Mississippi Valley to the south Atlantic coast. Considerable rainfall also dampened the midsection of the country from the Great Lakes through the eastern Ohio Valley and eastward to New England.

The National Weather Service reported golfball sized hail struck Azle, Tex., and Valdosta, Ga., causing some property damage. Severe thunderstorms, meanwhile, caused numerous power outages in other portions of north central Texas.

Tornado watches were posted much of the day for parts of Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio. The NWS reported at least eight tornadoes touched down in the nation — three in Illinois, two in Texas and one each in Indiana, Florida and West Virginia.

Elsewhere, winds up to 70 m.p.h. caused extensive wind damage in Evansville, Ind. Similar wind damage was reported in Memphis, Tenn., Southhaven, Mass., and Pembrooke, Ga.

Temperatures early today ranged from 83 at Phoenix, Ariz., and Needles, Calif., to 40 at Butte, Mont.

Deer blamed for break-in

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (Ap) — Police have solved an apparent breaking and entering at a hamburger restaurant in Noblesville, Ind.

It turned out that a deer rammed through a one-inch-thick plate glass window, damaged several tables, knocked a hole in the wall and then crashed through a door on its way out.

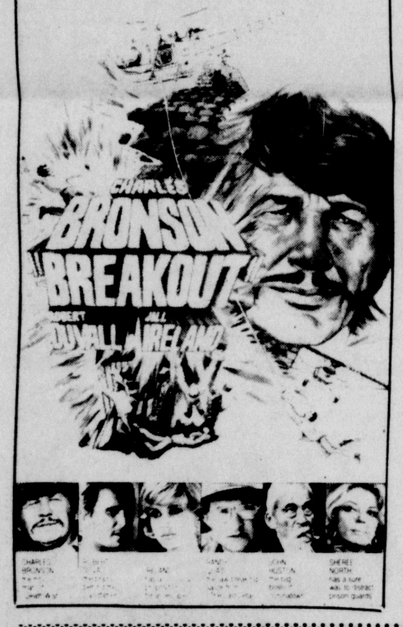

Police said the buck apparently became confused when it saw its reflection in the glass.
